Forecast for Friday 16 Apr 2021

Weather: It will be a dry, sunny and cold start to the day with a widespread frost in valleys due to a temperature inversion, mist and valley fog patches will be short-lived. Fair weather clouds will develop from mid-morning, but there will still be lengthy sunny spells through the day and it will stay dry. Into the evening and cloud amounts will reduce to give increasing amounts of sunshine.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: 100%. Small fair weather clouds will develop but the bases of these will be above all the summits.

Visibility: Some locally poor visibilities are possible first thing in any shallow valley fog, but otherwise visibility will be excellent with distant hills and landmarks visible.
